THE BETA MAGISTRATE

ARCHETYPE

There are neither maps nor programming for where you are going. The Zira-Kaan wild is a harsh and dangerous place, but you won't stop until you catch your prey. "Never quit, never lie, never apologize." It is a common phrase amongst magistrates, but nobody is better cut out to live by it than you. You know that you were initially a simple guard bot during the Imperial era, but the great Vatori empire upgraded you and reinstated you as a magistrate in a small satellite city state, way up north. Some would say that the experiment was a failure, given the fact that the place is now abandoned. But you know who is to blame. You have been hunting the culprit for months, and you won't stop until passing sentence and executing it. No hurry though. As you ride into yet another red sunset of Ur, you calculate your chance of success to 97.5%.

Special: You are a machine that vaguely resembles a blood. Built-in formula: Sleep Powder.

ARCHETYPE BOON

You may hurt bloods that have broken Vatori law. You know the law to the letter—no roll is ever required—but you also have a very literal interpretation of it.

†: Justice kin-gun (d8/7/burst)
